The editor of the Iron County Record has a candidate for senator, and expresses his preference in language not to be mistaken. In the following he sets up why he is for Mr. McCune for the place.

The Record has no politics, so feels at liberty to support men segardless of party affiliations, and just now rises to remark that when the time comes for the legislature of the state of Utah to choose a representative in the senate of the United States, no better selection could be made from the material offered than that of A. W. Mc-Cune, owner of the Salt Lake City railroad, president of the Utah & Pacific company, possessor of the Payne mine-one of the richest producers in British Columbia—and dozens of valuable properties in Utah. He is an able business man and a friend to the poor people.

In selecting a senator to represent us in the upper house of congress, we prefer a man who has shown his ability to provide for the interests of the state by his successful individual operations, to a man whose only ambition is to hold a fat office and who believes the world owes him a living, regardless of his own recording to the various states inviting them to send delegrates to a military convention to be held at Tampa next February, when matters relating to the state militia of the country will be discussed. Real Estate Transfers.

The Tribune is in sore straits for something with which to create a sensation. It started off yesterday with the statement, evidently made by a tharough Republican judging by the accent, that Hon. A. W. McCune had given the state committee $25,000 and then proceeds to deny the same as gracefully as possible. While there is no doubt that Mr. McCune will contribute to the campaign in the future, as he has in the past, this yarn was sprung as one of those affairs calculated to create something tremendous in the sensational line, with a string attachment.

The Tribune evidently has a "total depravity" man somewhere around within easy reach.

The Tribune has an advantage in these kind of tales, for no one would ever start a rumor about any member of its party donating $25,000 or any large part of it. If anything, the capitalists of the party are "sure thing" men and are not going against a "cinch."

Efforts of the Special Water Committee Succeed.

AND A MUCH-NEEDED RAIN-

For Permanent Relief the Committee Will Recommend That Canal Water Be Exchanged For That From Pure Mountain Streams Now Used For Irrigation.

The "rainmakers," that is, the special ommittee appointed by the city coun- this city. cil a month ago to investigate the water problem with a view toward procuring an additional supply for the city's future use, and also to devise a plan for obtaining immediate relief, it possible, from this seasons' famine, commenced its researches yesterday along Mill creek and up into Big Cottonwood canyon. The committee brought immediate temporary relief from a sky that in the morning was cloudless, for no sooner had the members returned to town than a rousing big rain storm set in. All credit is due to the committee. Doubtless had the committee commenced on the duties possible, from this seasons' famine committee commenced on the duties selegated to it last month and given the subject faithful and constant attention a heavy fall of rain on the dry and parched city could have been had daily, judging from yesterday's success.

Democratic State Headquarters. more could be done. The several main and branch creeks were examined, but no facilities were at hand for taking accurate measurements of the streams for which it is proposed to exchange city canal water with the farmers for an equivalent of clear, pure mountain water. The subject of water rights, primary and secondary, and all more or less conflicting, was inquired into in an introductory sort of way. The basis of exchange of waters was talked over very guardedly. At no time was it clear that the canyon creeks could be made serviceable to the city in the event of mutually satisfactory exchanges, because no reliable data was changes, because no reliable data was at hand to demonstrate that the flow could be delivered to the city pipe system at a point high enough up af-ter leaving the lowest water power plant, actual or prospective, by right of mere location. No reservoir sites were examined, and no suggestion was made for condemnation proceedings. How to obtain from $100,000 to $550,000 of funds to procure and make available additional water supply for the city was not discussed at any great length, but it was suggested that probably a proposition to float bonds would be consented to by the taxpayers, who have suffered for water this year, and are likely to suffer again next season.

WILL REPORT TUESDAY. The "rainmakers," otherwise the special committee, consist of Councilman Howe as chairman, Councilmen Mar-Howe as chairman, Councilmen Margetts, Diehl, Weiler and Callister, Watermaster Seddon, City Engineer Kelsey and Waterworks Superintendent Caine. It is probable that they will hold a meeting for consultation in a few days to prepare a recommendation or a report for submission to the city council Tuesday Evening, covering the subject matter in hand. But it is problematical as to what particular plan or plans, if any, will be suggested as a means of obtaining an adequate additional supply of water for next season and the future.

HARD NUTS TO CRACK AND NO

HARD NUTS TO CRACK AND NO

CRACKERS. Without having a compilation of Without having a compilation of comparative data from measurements, surveys and a digest of indisputable water rights owned by farmers and power locators, it will be impossible to determine whether it would be prudent or advantageous to the city to exchange canal water with the farmers for an equivalent right in inches to canyon water; whether it would be best to store the spring flood water in large reservoirs in the near canyons for large reservoirs in the near canyons for summer use; how much it would cost to pipe an adequate flow to the Par-ley's conduit reservoir, and finally which of the many is the best method of obtaining and bringing to the city an ample water supply at the least ex-pense consistent with the greatest measure of good results and with the least risk of costly and vexatious litigation with the many interests that may be involved. The city engineer has not yet been authorized to procure all this most necessary data, and be-fore the water problem is solvable lit-tle can be done in the direction most desired by the inhabitants of the city. It is, therefore, quite likely that the special committee will request the council to direct the city engineer to proceed with his technical calculations and inspection of water titles that are for sale or exchange. Until the coun-cil grants this request nothing tangible can be accomplished.

THE "RAINMAKERS" INVESTIGA-

TIONS. The special committee, in company with Watermasters Daniel Lund and N. D. Jensen, representing the farmers along Mill Creek, and Watermasters Robert Harmon and George Taxior of the district irrigated from branch ditches running north from Big Cottonwood creek, viewed all the diverging mountain streams up to the headeste nountain streams up to the headgate in Mill Creek canyon. At the last named noint a stream 12½ feet wide by 3½ inches deep runs over the sill of the headgate at a rather swift rate. All along the route, questions were asked and answered by the farmers' assed and answered by the tarmers watermasters.

Arriving at Knudsen's grove, lunch was eaten and the "ditch water" sampled. If any one in the aggregation besides The Herald reporter prayed aloud for rain to come before night he was not detected in the act.

MORE APPARENT TRUTHS. All along the north side of Big Cot-tonwood creek the branch ditches were All along the north side of Big Cottonwood creek the branch ditches were inspected, but no idea of the volume of the canyon stream could be gained until the Utah Power company's plant was reached. Here the creek flows about six times as much water as passes through the Mill creek headgate. Across the foothills it is about two miles from the Tarley's conduit reservoir to the mouth of Mill Creek canyon, while from the latter point to the entrance to Big Cottonwood canyon it is estimated to be twice that distance. The lowest power plant location of any consequence on Big Cottonwood creek is at the old paper mill, but it is believed that the point of discharge there is below the intake of the Pariey's conduit. If this is true, it means that no supply of water for this city can be easily or at all obtained from Big Cottonwood.

THE EXCHANGE PROPOSITION.

THE EXCHANGE PROPOSITION.

THE EXCHANGE PROPOSITION.

The watermasters representing the farmers stated that they had not quite finished canvassing their respective districts, but nearly every landowner approached had announced his readiness to enter into a contract to exchange their canyon creek shares for an equivalent of city canal water. All this, of course, applies to land irrigated below the city canal. Nearly all the farmers would rely upon their wells to furnish water for culinary purposes.

but those who had no wells would have to dig them or get a small supply of canyon water.

It was represented that over 1,100 acres were irrigated by Mill creek below the city canal and more than 2,500 acres under the Big Cottonwood branch ditches. Four-fifths of the latter will trade waters with the city. The Mill creek farmers claim to own 27-80ths of that creek, all or nearly all below the canal. Each share is on a basis of 34 acres. The shares are alleged to be for primary rights, but whether such rights are now getting all the water they are entitled to or whether these rights are good in law against the everappearing conflicts in seasons of scarcity, remains to be determined.

THE MAGNANIMOUS FARMERS. THE MAGNANIMOUS FARMERS.

The farmers' watermasters stated that their constituents were willing to help Salt Lake City get more water by means of the suggested exchange, because it would be to the mutual advantage of the farmers and the city folks, and moreover, the growth and prosperity of the metropolis, by reason of the easy solution of the water famine problem, would yield many benefits to the farmers, who say they are prone to feel an interest in the welfare of this city.

WILL BE A THROUGH LINE

CONDUCTOR GREGORY'S AWFUL DEATH AT DIVIDE.

Reduced Rates Are Now No More-B. & O. Southwestern Employees Trying to Arrange Matters-Movement of Troops-Other Railway News.

Sunday's issue of the San Francisco Call has a story on the Utah & Pacific, to-gether with a two-column picture of President A. W. McCune.

gether with a two-column picture of President A. W. McCune.

The story reads that after many years of disappointment, Salt Lake City is about to see its cherished project, the construction of another railroad to California, carried out. So often have various promoters of the enterpise pretended to be able to construct the road without having the necessary backing, that the repeated failures had many people distrustful of all propositions relative to the building of the line. But the anterprison ow on foot, that of the Utah & Pacific, has progressed to far that doubt has been dispelled and confidence is feit that at last a new road to the coast is assured. Continuing, the article says: "The developments of the last few days have been of a character to satisfy the public that the company means business. When it was organized a short time ago, it limited the announcement of its purpose to the statement that it would build a line from the present terminus of the Oregon Short Line, at Milford, Utah, southwesterly to the Nevada state line, a distance of 76 miles. Years ago the roadbed for this extension was built, but the vicissitudes of the Union Pacific, which then operated the Short Line system, caused further work on the line to be abandoned. This line is now to be used by the Utah & Pacific, being in such a state of preservation that it will need only locally its rails. The contract for this track-laying has been lef, and it is now certain that the work will begin within the next week. The rails are to be supplied by the Short Line company, which has the steel on hand. Ties have been purchased in eastern Oregon and southern Utah, and the first shipments will arrive in Milford this week."

Spokane. Wash. Sept. 28.—The Union depot property in this city will be sold Nov. 12 under an order of sale of the federal court. No bid will be received for less than $25,000. The purchase price must be paid in cash. The property is now used jointly by the O. R. & N. and the Great Northern, under lease. The stock is now held jointly by the Union Pacific and the O. R. & N. The property consists of the depot and station buildings, about 90 acres of land, cars, etc. It is being sold under proceedings instituted to foreclose a mortigage held by the American Loan & Trust company. The amount due on the mortigage was about $35,000, and there was due when the sult was brought about $150,000 in interest. This latter amount the receiver him the receiver ship, the annual new revenue of the property has been about $41,000, as against $15,000 previously. of Court.

RATES SETTLED There Will Be No More Cheap Tariffs Into Utah.

The day of reduced rates from the east to this city and other Utah points is over. It ended yesterday. Hereafter full rates will be charged by all the lines, and the importers of goods will get no more rebates, if the agreements are lived up to. Plenty of shipments have been made during the time the low tariffs were in, and many more carioads of goods came here than there would if the old rates had prevalled, or, rather, if there had not been a prospect of stiffer rules prevailing.

Business on all the lines has been good for some time, and the lucrease in the number of cars handled has been heavy. There was a big increase in the business of all roads leading out of Utah yesterday. It ended yesterday. Hereafter full rates
